Employer insight

- Many employers are looking to pilot apprenticeship programmes whilst they review ROI for their levy funds
- Growth in higher level apprenticeships is expected
- Demand for standards is growing as knowledge of these products widens
- More technical information about apprenticeships required up front to enable employers to make the right choices.
- Course directory information needs to be accurate, a key market place for providers and employers to do business
- Price is more important to some employers more than others

Education & Skills Funding Agency

Provider insight

- Some employers need more information about apprenticeships
- More data needed to inform decision making, planning and meeting demand
- Off the job training requirements are challenging in some sectors but a key pillar of a quality apprenticeship
- Providers are reporting decline in starts across certain sectors, H&SC, Retail and Hospitality
- Co-investment not popular in some sectors, difficult to convince employers about ROI
- Turnaround time for new starts has increased
